The post-office authorities are again after those who use washed stamps. A short time ago a St. Thomas man was fined $20 and costs for this offence, and now it is said others in his locality are to be prosecuted, too, for writing in newspapers mailed at newspaper rates of postage. These are petty frauds, but the lowest penalty provided by statute is $10 and costs.

The fine imported German coach horse, Kiser Wilhelm, has become the property of the Lennox & Addington Horse Association of which H. A. Martin, Moscow, is president, W. H. Hunter, Napanee, Sec.; G. H. Williams, Manager; John Herrington, groom. Kiser Wilhelm is a beautiful animal and has an excellent pedigree, extending back through the record of the Arabian Sheiks and the German Government records for over a thousand years. Kiser Wilhelm will be travelled through this county this season.

J. H. Metcalfe, warden of the Kingston penitentiary, has blossomed out in a new role, that of an obituary poet. A young man from Kincardine, incarcerated in the penitentiary for incendiarism, died in that institution last week, and the festive James consoles the bereaved father with a few verses of his own composing. We can assure the versatile warden that a bottle of I X L would have had greater potency in assuaging the grief of the bereaved father, better known to the people of Kincardine as "Major Hen," than eight or nine miles of poetry.

able farmer living in the vicinity of Wilton, bowed recently at the shrine of "Free Methodism" and the excitement incidental to these meetings proved too much for her reason. Ever since her conversion to the faith some few months ago she has been an ardent worshipper and has been very zealous for the cause. Of late her zeal got the better of her judgment and it is feared that her mind is deranged. One night last week after the rest of the family had retired, she rose from her bed, proceeded to the stable hitched up the mare and departed. A couple of days afterwards her husband located her at Peterboro, at the home of a free methodist.

Balance for Grindstones.

One of the most satisfactory little improvements I have lately made is a balance on my grindstone. I turn with a treadle, operated by my foot, and this balance not only makes the stone turn easier, but also makes it run much steadier. To make the balance I got a piece of iron about five-eighths of an inch thick, 3 1/2 inches wide and 19 inches long. Had blacksmith punch a hole in iron 2 1/2 inches from one end, of size to fit on grindstone shaft, on end opposite treadle. It should be put on so that long end of iron would be opposite the little crank that treadle is fastened to, so that when treadle is being pressed by the foot the long end of iron will be going up, and when the treadle is going up the weight of iron will be going down and help raise treadle, thus forming a balance.

Plowing Prevents Drought.

It will be found that where the soil is kept loose by plowing and cultivation its capacity for absorbing and holding water is much greater than where it is neglected. Thus every weed and surplus growth must be scrupulously kept down, as everything that grows is constantly drawing moisture from the soil. If we can get the upper and lower moisture in the soil to meet the battle is won, for the cultivation is favorable to the capillary action of the soil in drawing moisture from below, and cultivation will prevent its evaporation from the surface. If, however, there is a dry streak of soil a foot or more below the surface, vegetation will suffer accordingly.

Why Horses Like Oats.

It is not accidental that oats, the grain which next to whole wheat, is best for furnishing growth to the muscles, should have always been the favorite food for horses. They are better than wheat for all animals except man, and as good also for a man, if properly prepared. It is the large proportion of hull which makes oats superior for horse feed, as the hull distends the nutriment and prevents it from compacting and heating in the stomach. Oat grain not only contains a large amount of nitrogenous nutriment, but it has besides a certain stimulative substance, which is peculiar to the oat.

A Difficult Problem Satisfactorily Solved.

In the past the ladies have had thousands of dollars worth of valuable goods ruined through the use of inferior and adulterated dyes prepared for home dyeing. The greatest that we can point to is in the coloring of mixed goods—fabrics composed of cotton and wool, cotton and silk, and silk and wool.

The manufacturers of Diamond Dyes put up special dyes for the coloring of all mixed goods, giving colors that are fast to soap and sunlight. Diamond Dyes for mixed goods are the only reliable dyes in the world, and are all guaranteed to do perfect work.

Every druggist and dealer of any standing in Canada can supply you with Diamond Dyes for Mixed goods. Do not accept imitations or substitutes; compel your dealer to give you the "Diamond."

In the new tariff it is proposed to note that the farmer has received some consideration. For eighteen long years he has been taxed for the benefit of the combiner and the monopolist and although as a class he has done more than any other to develop the Dominion instead of being assisted in his undertaking has been hampered and retarded by hostile legislation. While we do not advocate Government favoritism we do declare that if any class is to be favored it should be the farmers, who are the backbone of the country. The Finance Minister recognizing their claim has placed corn on the free list. Binder twine and fence wire have also been placed on the free list and the duty on iron has been greatly reduced which will materially help the farmer, by reducing the price of farm implements. The reduction of $3 per ton on steel and $1.50 per ton on pig iron means more to the farmers than appears at first glance. Iron and steel are the principle articles entering into the composition of binders, mowers and ploughs, three prime essentials to the farmer. A binder when finished weighs about 1500 lbs and of this 1,400 lbs is steel and iron. A mower will weigh about 650 lbs and of this 600 lbs is steel and iron and about 100 lbs. of steel and iron enters into the manufacture of a plough, so that it can easily be perceived that the reduction, while not injuring the manufacturer, will greatly benefit the farmer.

One of the important and popular features of the new tariff is the preferential trade schedule which admits British goods into Canada at a lower duty than any other nation. The loyalty of the Liberals takes a practical form, that of the Tory variety exhausted itself in words. In the Liberal platform adopted at Ottawa in 1893 it was resolved that the tariff should be so arranged as to promote free trade with the whole world, more particularly with Great Britain and the United States. This has not been lost sight of in framing the new tariff. While a general tariff will be levied upon goods from countries giving no trade advantages to Canada, a special tariff will be adopted for countries that permit imports of Canadian goods free of duty or at minimum tariff rates. In any revenue tariff there must be incidental protection but under the new tariff if it is found that a combination or agreement of any kind exists among manufacturers or dealers to enhance the price of any article and that the combine is facilitated by the tariff on similar articles imported, the Governor in council shall place such articles on the free list or so reduce the duties as to give consumers the benefit of competition.

The falling off in the revenue caused by the reduction in the tariff is to be met by an increased duty on whiskey and tobacco. The duty on spirits is increased from $2.25 to $2.40 per gallon. In Britain the new tariff has been received with great acclaim and in consequence of the preference granted to the Mother Country a warmer feeling exists for Canada to-day in the hearts of our brethren across the sea. Premier Laurier will receive nothing short of an ovation when he visits London to attend the Queen's Jubilee.

NANANEE, FRIDAY, APRIL 30th, 1897.

FOSTER had his "moment of weakness" now he has a bad attack of that tired feeling.

The Old Flag was useful in its day but Tupper & Co. are on the lookout for a new ensign.

The Finance Minister makes the ex-Finance Minister tired. The Hon George E has many weary days before him.

It is said the new tariff will kill the 5 cent cigarette. The 5 cent cigarette has killed scores but retribution has at last overtaken it.

The London Times came out in favor of the new tariff without consulting Sir Chas. Tupper. The Times had better be careful—the baronet may stop his paper.

The new tariff went into effect on the 22nd inst. and next day local merchants were selling a seven cent plug of chewing tobacco for nine cents. This demonstrates the rapid effect of the tariff and the tobacco man's intention to reap the full benefit of it.

Under the old N. P. tariff the tax on coarse clothes was much higher than on the finer and more expensive fabrics. Under the new tariff the reduction in the coarser woolen clothes is very marked and will materially reduce the price.

When Mr. Fielding rose to announce the tariff on the 22nd inst it went into effect. The Dineley Bill in the United Kingdom is now before the House.

BRIGHTON BRIEFS.

An Interesting Story.

A well known Brighton lady tells what she thinks regarding heart trouble, and how to cure it. Mrs. Stephen P. Clapp, the estimable wife of Brighton's popular painter, tells that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for her. Mrs. Clapp says: "I have been a sufferer from extreme nervousness for years, and for the last two years my heart has troubled me greatly. I could not sleep soundly, and would often awaken with a start, together with a curious feeling as if my heart had stopped beating, and it would be sometime before I could recover myself. At times I became very dizzy and a mist gathering before my eyes. I have taken many kinds of patent medicines, but could get nothing to relieve me. Finally I received a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills from Messrs. L. J. Auston & Co. of this place, and am glad to say that they gave me relief in a short time. I now sleep well, my nerves are steady and strong, and I am better in every way than I have been for years. I recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills very highly to those suffering from any trouble affecting the heart and nerves, for I know that they have been a great boon to me." States is still dragging its weary way through the Senate and it is difficult to say what may happen to it before that august body gets through with it.

WHAT, HO! Foster, this is treason to the Queen. These disloyal Grits have violated the constitution by granting preferential trade to the mother country. By my beard, I, Sir Chas. Tupper, will not submit to it. I will warn Belgium and Germany of their danger.

THE bye-elections on Tuesday all went Liberal. In Winnipeg Jameson was elected by a majority of over 1,200; Dr. Rutherford was elected in Macdonald by a good majority. In West Prince, P. E. I. Perry, Liberal, was elected over Hackett, the unseated Conservative, by a small majority. Things are indeed coming our way.

UNDER the old N. P. tariff it was difficult to discover "where you were at." The man who wanted a screw nail over two inches long paid three cents per lb duty, while if he wished a screw nail less than an inch long he paid 8 cents per lb. The tools of the farmer and workmen were taxed 35 per cent while ordinary cutlery was taxed at but 25 per cent. The Liberal Government had a herculean task to reduce order out of the chaos of the N. P. schedule, notoriously framed for the benefit of friends of the late Government. The result of the revision will be to reduce the rate all around to something less than 20 per cent and to abolish the pernicious specific duties.

THE NEW TARIFF.

Viewing it dispassionately and in the light of existing conditions the New Tariff submitted to the House on the 22nd inst., cannot help but prove gratifying to the people of Canada. While it is not as sweeping as some would wish, or as some expected, it is a step in the right direction and in keeping with the Liberal platform as laid down in the great National Liberal Convention held at Ottawa in June, 1893. At that convention it was resolved that the customs tariff of the Dominion should be based, not upon the protective principle, but upon the requirements of the public service. In the New Tariff, wherever practicable the protective features have been eliminated and the tariff made to bear as lightly as possible upon the necessities of life. The abolition of specific duties, which were a source of annoyance to business men, and discriminated in favor of the rich as against the poorer classes, will come in the nature of a boon and cannot help but prove popular and beneficial. The Free Breakfast Table, which was held up by Tory journals as one of the peculiar blessings incidental to the National Policy, has been retained and large additions made to the free list. The duty on sugar that goes on to the breakfast table has been reduced from $1.14 to $1 per 100 lbs. The people also receive the benefit of reductions on breadstuffs, flour, wheat and cornmeal, and coal oil has been reduced from 6 cents to 5 cents per gallon and not the least of this reduction is the removal of the burdensome restrictions respecting the sale of coal oil which unduly enhanced the retail price of it.

A system of public work that has much to commend it is that of "Co-operative Contract," in vogue in New Zealand. Under that system a public work is divided into small sections by the engineer in charge, and an estimate is made of its cost. Each section is then let out to a group of workmen, who do the work under a foreman of their own choosing, but who receives no more than his fellows. They obtain the full profit which would otherwise go to professional contractors, and they share the payment equally.

Each worker is interested in seeing that his companions do their full amount of work, and the sooner the job is performed the greater the return for a day's work. If any tools are needed which the men do not own, the Government supplies them at a moderate rental. The adoption of this system should provide a method whereby direct employment by the Government would be consistent with a full return for the money expended, giving to the community an advantage in the economical execution of public enterprises equal to that enjoyed by private employers.—Review of Reviews.

POISONED BLOOD.

Dreadful Death-Draught Comes from Diseased Kidneys.

When Uric Acid Flows in the Veins, Life looks out of Darkened Windows, expecting soon the Close of Day.

The fashionable Italian poison of the XVI century was Aqua Torfana. It was used by the medicos and all the first families of Rome, Genoa, and Naples. In five years historians tell us, over 600 wives used it to make widows of themselves.

In these modern days a more terrible and more prevalent poison is decimating the human family, and men have asked in vain for an antidote. It is the uramic poisoning of the blood, caused by diseased kidneys. The poison which these useful organs should filter from the blood, is allowed to remain in the circulation and courses through the body, like

"Accursed Hebenon... whose effect Holds such an enmity with blood of man, That with a sudden vigor it doth posset and curd

It is a specific for all Kidney ailments. It cures by restoring the kidneys, so that they properly perform their natural functions. It is the ONLY KNOWN CURE for Diabetes, and Bright's Disease. For sale by druggists everywhere, and the Dodd's Medicine Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

MR. VERNON BROMLEY, Trenton, Ont., says:—"For a number of years I have suffered severely from Rheumatism and Sciatica. Was induced to procure a half dozen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills which I have used, and from being a cripple I am a well man."

MR. THOS. HARRISON, St. Mary's, N. B., says:—"In spite of all other treatment I suffered for nearly a year with Stone of the Bladder. I was relieved by passing the same, after using one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and completely cured by a few boxes."

MR. WM. McEVELA, 275 Friel St. Ottawa, says:—"Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills have worked a wonderful cure in my case. Had been laid up with kidney trouble for months."

G. B. CONES, Orillia, Ont., says:—"I most cheerfully testify that five boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured me of Diabetes from which I suffered two years."

"Well, here's the dollar," declared the man. "I wouldn't have had her die for five. She was a model wife."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Seed Propagation.

The necessary requisites for successful plant raising from seed are, first of all, to buy fresh seed from a reliable dealer—then to sow the seeds properly, and to care for them properly until they germinate—to transplant at the right stage of growth, and to take the right care of them until they are ready to be set where they are expected to grow and flower. From ignorance of these general principles much good seed doubtlessly goes to waste every year. True, seeds fall sometimes, because they are so old they have lost their vitality, or possibly they have never been perfectly developed, but the practical reason of failure is in the individual not comprehending the needs of the seed before he starts out to deal with it.

In every perfect seed will be found an embryo, or germ, that upon examination will show to be a rudimentary plantlet, with a perfectly formed stem, leaves and bud. Now, before this minute plant is forced into development, certain conditions have to be fulfilled, such as the giving of moisture, air and water in proper amounts. First of all the seed has to absorb enough water to completely saturate and soften it, so it can swell. This is why we sometimes soak certain seeds before planting, which expedites this first step toward germination—especially when the seeds are large with thick and strong outer coats. With this softening and swelling keep in a temperature of from fifty to ninety degrees, with a free circulation of air, and it will not be long before the tiny embryo will burst its bounds and become visible on the surface. Seeds will germinate in pure water, or between dampened brown paper or cotton, but for growth there must be soil.—Eugenia Pruden, in Home Magazine.

A Vision of the Future.

One day in October, 1883, Lady A., living in Rue de Bel-Respiro, Paris, found that she had been robbed of a sum of 3500 francs. She notified the Commissary of Police on Rue Berryer, who instituted a search and questioned the servants, but discovered nothing. Lady A., when enumerating her servants, begged the Commissary to exclude from his suspicions her second valet de chambre, a youth of 19, very good-looking, very respectful, and very well qualified for his duties, who had been nicknamed "le Petit," not on account of his stature, for he was rather tall, but from a feeling of delicate, protecting familiarity which his good qualities had won for him. Meanwhile, among the friends of Lady A. there had been a good deal of talk about a certain Demoiselle E., who they said, could see the most surprising things in a bowl of coffee grounds. M. L. d'Erveux had the curiosity to accompany his governess to the house of this person, and was quite surprised to hear her describe exactly each piece of furniture in Lady A.'s apartment, pass in review her seven servants, and say that, though she could not name the thief, he would be guilty within two years. Some weeks later "le Petit" left the service of his mistress without giving any reason, and two years later he mounted the scaffold. This servant, so highly esteemed, was no other than Marchandon, the assassin.—The Arena.

MATERIALS AND STYLES.

The Grenadines, the Tucks, the Embroideries and the Rosettes.

Grenadine—the beautiful old grenadine, though much improved—has come back to us. Of it some of the most exquisite of summer gowns will be fashioned.

Tucks are applied to low bodices in an entirely new style, that is, satin and silk, made full back and front, are covered with lisse, having horizontal tucks from the neck to the waist, and the sleeves are treated in the same way. The material renders them very soft and graceful and makes them exactly suitable for the little debutante.

Embroidery characterizes many of the handsome gowns now being made up for after-Easter functions. Chenille embroidery is particularly adapted to flowers and chenille is now dyed in the most beautiful colors.

Low bodices are nearly all laced in the back. For young matrons the bodices pointing back and front are considered more suitable than those round and belted.

We still retain our admiration for the turquoise—both the stone and the shade in fabrics. The turquoise plays an important part in embroidery, and it is still the fashion to mingle it with a bright mossy green.

Moirs has come back to us in a great many guises. It shows to best advantage as the ground work of the large and beautiful designs in satin brocade thrown upon it. Occasionally there are cloud effects or lace scrolls. Some of the moirs are very little watered, but when brocaded the waves are very large.

Every width of lace can be called into requisition nowadays. Very deep flounces are frequently united round the centre to form a wattleau, secured to the shoulders at the back and descending to the hem, while narrower pieces go down the side seams of the bodice and skirt. Sometimes they are festooned diagonally across the skirt, or in a straight line all round, headed by ruffles of flowers. Loose ends of lace very frequently fall from the bust to the hem of the dress, held in place by bows of ribbon. There are plenty of ways to arrange without cutting the priceless pieces of lace one may treasure as heirlooms.

Rosettes, made in chiffon, ribbon, lace and satin, and are introduced on the fronts of the bodices in the immediate centre, on either shoulder, and at the back of the waist, while they play an important part in catching up the diaphanous materials which now veil so many skirts.

Some of the dressmakers are trimming their bodices with cascades and loops of lace specially designed to

If you have any of these organs out of repair your whole nervous system is out of gear and your life is in peril.

Paine's Celery Compound gives perfect action to the heart and other important organs; it makes pure blood, gives perfect digestion, sweet sleep, and puts you in a condition of vigor and strength that enables you to battle against the heat of summer and all the epidemics that may rise.

Remember that "Paine's" is the kind that cures. Refuse the something just as good that some dealers would offer you. Ask for Paine's Celery Compound and see that you are supplied with it.

PLANTING TREES.

Hints on Preparing the Ground—The Improved Nursery Pruning.

Perhaps the most important operation in planting an orchard is the preparation and planting of the trees. In digging trees in the nursery all the roots are generally cut off by the spade or digger within one foot or less of the collar, and are very much in the condition illustrated in Figs. 1 and 2. In many cases the trees have only two or three main roots and very few laterals, the former very often torn and bruised as in Fig. 3. Now when the trees come out of the package the pruning they require to fit them properly for planting is, first to cut off smoothly all injured ends of the roots with a sharp knife. Then as a large amount of

CHRISTIANITY OWES MUCH TO HIS ZEAL AND ENDURANCE.

His Life During the Early Days of Methodism in Canada Was Often One of Great Hardship—The Story of One Now Enjoying a Ripe Old Age.

From the Simcoe Reformer.

In the early days of Methodism in Canada the gospel was spread abroad in the land by the active exertions of the circuit rider. It required a man of no ordinary health and strength; an iron constitution and unflagging determination to fulfil the arduous duties incumbent on one who undertook to preach salvation to his fellowmen. It was no easy task that these men set themselves to, but they were strong in the faith and hope of ultimate reward. Many fell by the wayside, while others struggled on and prospered, and a few are to-day enjoying a ripe old age happy in the knowledge that a lasting reward will soon be theirs. Most of these old timers are not now engaged in active church work, but have been placed on the supernumerary list, and are now living a quiet life in town or on a farm free from the cares of the world, they await the call to come up higher.

Rev. David Williams, who lives two miles southwest of Nixon, Ont., in the township of Windham, Norfolk County, was one of these early days circuit riders. He was a man of vigorous health and although without many advantages in the way of early education he succeeded by dint of hard and constant study in being admitted to the ministry. He was the first born in the first house built in Glen Williams near Georgetown, Mr. George Kennedy the founder of Georgetown, being a brother of his mother. To-day he is 70 years old and for the past 26 years has lived in this county. For many years he had been a sufferer from kidney and kindred diseases. He tried all kinds of remedies, and although sometimes temporarily relieved he gradually grew worse until in October 1895 he was stricken with paralysis. From this he partially recovered and recovered his powers of speech but his mind was badly wrecked and his memory was so poor that he could not remember the name of the person to whom he wished to speak without thinking intently for several minutes. One day driving to church he wished to speak of a neighbor who lived next to him for twenty years, but he could not recall the name for an hour or more. In addition to his mental trouble, he had intense bodily suffering; pain in the head, across the forehead, in the temples and behind the ears, across the lower part of the skull and in the joint of the neck. He had great weakness and pains in the back, hips and legs. In fact so much did he suffer that sleep was almost an impossibility, and he fell away in weight until he only weighed 145 pounds. By this time, Dec. 1895, he became despondent and felt that if he did not soon obtain relief, he would soon bid adieu to the things of this world. On the 20th of December he read of a cure in the Reformer by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and being seized with a sudden inspiration at once wrote to Brockville for a supply of that marvellous remedy. Immediate good results followed their use and he has improved wonderfully during the past year. He has recovered his bodily health and strength, is comparatively free from pain and his memory is as nearly as good as it ever was and as the improvement continues the prospects are very bright for complete recovery. He has gained 20 pounds in weight since beginning the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mr. Williams says: "I can heartily endorse the many good things said of these pills in the papers, and strongly recommend them to all who are suffering from the blood with its kindred and debilitating properties, thus driving disease from the system. There are numerous pink colored imitations, against which the public is warned. The genuine Pink Pills can be had only in boxes the wrappers around which bears the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Refuse all others.

Rural Miscellany.

Plan to grow more grass and clover. Study the requirements of the soil as well as of the market. Select the crops with respect to their adaptability to the farm. It is not only an item to increase quantity but to improve the quality of the crops. Cattle should be trained to walk fast before attempting to improve them in any other point. On the farm, as in any other line of business, it is an item to save labor and economize time. Manure adds to the productivity of land as soon as it is applied, but all of the substances will not be used up in one season. The farm products should be put in the form in which they will bring the most money and yet leave the farm in the most productive condition. While the farm may not always show large returns in the way of cash, yet with good management the farmer may be reasonably sure of a good living.

HER ANSWER IN THREE LETTERS.

Fulfilled Her Promise, But Her Reply Was a Negative.

He loved her with all his heart, but he was not certain that his affection was reciprocated. He determined to trap her into a promise to marry him. He made a mathematical calculation. "Mary," he said, his voice trembling with emotion, "I love you. I am going to ask you to be my wife; will you give me your answer in a word of three letters?" Her face was turned partly from him and her eyes were downcast. A faint blush mantled her cheeks, and her lips trembled as she softly murmured "I will." His eyes reflected the joy in his heart at her words, and more tremulously, more tenderly than he had spoken before, he whispered: "Mary, darling, I love you; will you be my wife?" "Nix."

Looks Like It.

Son—Ain't you going to let me fly it, Pop? Father—No; it's too big for you to manage. Son—Then I guess I'll go around to Dolph's and shoot marbles. Father—You stay just where you are. Do you suppose I want the neighbors to think I am flying a kite for my own amusement?

Jesters' Chorus.

"How are all your family?" asked the genial friend. "Oh," replied the man who uses slang and makes puns, "we're all out of sight." "Humph. You don't seem very cheerful about it." "I have no reason to. The kind of sight I mean is anthracite."—Washington Star.

the centre for a lace rosette on the collar side, while a long bar brooch holds a butterfly of lace in place on the shoulder. The disposal of jewels to advantage requires a great deal of thought and care, and the whole effect of a toilette is very easily spoiled by a want of attention thereto.

There is an attractive selection of new materials, especially in fancy coatings, one being in navy blue, with a misty-green line in it, and another of chocolate with a black line. Venetian cloth for intermediate wear, and a cashmere cloth, with beautiful soft surface, resembling the old-fashioned double cashmere; also some soft Scotch tweeds, with an indefinite check of various shades. In thinner materials there is a new canvas in black and a soft lichen-like to be made up over colored silks exactly resembling drawn linen work in open and closed squares. Royal blue and black and white, with touches of red, are becoming popular, as promised.

My lady has a new cravat, a stock of glace silk, fastening at one side with a bow and two ends. This is the newest cravat, and this is a bit of history about the oldest: The cravat was once the name of a great military nation, according to an authority, the Croats, or Cravats of the Balkans. It was their fashion to wrap large shawls or pieces of cloth around their necks and shoulders. About the middle of the reign of Louis XIV. he uniformed several regiments in the Croat fashion, with huge shawls about their necks. The fashion took, and the shawl diminished in size to the comparatively slight strip of cloth we now call a cravat.

White cloth Eton jackets are fashionable in London. It may be only a question of time until they are with us. The fashion chroniclers proclaim them very pretty.

Bright green chiffon, set into toque shapes, trimmed at one side with a bunch of white gardenias and a single pink rose in a model worthy of imitation for an evening bonnet.

Even the sunburnt skirts are not exempt from lavish trimming. They are usually bedecked with encircling bands of lace or ribbon.

Black silk shirt waists, with two or three side plaits of some bright color, set in on either side of the front, and a turn-over collar and cuffs of kilited silk of the same shade, are very attractive as well as useful.

Bright Trimmings.

In looking at all the trimmings you cannot fail to be reminded of the effects of which the last scenes in pantomimes have made us familiar. The cup sequins, that look like jewels, very infrequently replace them, and a great deal of silver and steel is used alone and together. All these bright tones of colorings have even crept into belts, which are made of stuff that resembles the old Flemish leather, only the colors are very light, such as pink, blue, mauve, or green, intermixed with silver or gold. Another valuable collection of trimmings, with both edges alike, waved or scalloped, have a lace-like foundation, completely hidden by palmette and embroidery, and others show no groundwork at all, but simply consist of small overlapping sequins, those for the groundwork black, with bright red, green or mauve on the surface. Switzerland has sent a large convey of trimmings into our market, made principally of silk, admirable as to color, especially those of pompadour designs. Then there are a good many ribbon-like trimmings brocaded and having picot edges, also gay in coloring.

Spring Blouses.

Blouses for wear under jackets and coats are made perfectly plain, or tucked horizontally in the back and in the front with side plaits turning away from a vest of white satin covered with white point or Venetian lace, finished at the neck with two falls of lace, with a knot of velvet in the centre to match, the velvet points on revers, or decorations of any sort at the back of the collar. Quite vivid contrasts of color are seen, as, for instance, a blouse of figured taffeta on a violet ground has a knot at the throat of the most vivid burnt orange, with the same color velvet at the back of the collar. A gray blouse has accessories of primrose velvet. These knots at the throat are small and closely tied.

shown by the dotted lines at a. Fig. 1. In this pruning careful attention must be given to the formation of the head, and such branches as will injure the form of the head must be cut away entirely.

In pruning, a hole must be dug sufficiently large to allow the spreading out of the roots in a natural position. Surface soil should be thrown by itself, and if not of good quality some fertilizing material like fine ground bone, well decomposed stable manure or mild phosphate should be thoroughly mixed with it. Now place the tree in a proper position in the hole about one inch deeper than it stood in the nursery, and work in this soil around and under the roots, covering about three inches deep before treading it down. After this amount of soil has been thoroughly trodden down, throw in the remainder of the good soil loosely and the subsoil over all without treading down.

With the pear and pear trees and grapevines there is some danger of applying too much fertilizer, but with the apple, plum and quince there is little danger with the average cultivator of making the soil too rich. On ordinary soils from two to five large handfuls of fine bone, or two or three shovelfuls of fine manure well incorporated with the soil may be used with safety. Most fruit trees as received from the nursery have the main branches of the head not over four feet from the ground, and if the land is to be cultivated, in a few years they will interfere much with the use of the team among them. To form the head higher the matter must be attended to at or before planting. If the tree is in the condition shown in Fig. 1, all the lateral branches at a must be cut away, leaving a clean central leader from which new lateral branches start out as indicated from the dotted lines at b.

The main thing in forming a perfect head is to have the lateral branches distributed as far apart upon the axis as possible. If they all come out at nearly the same point, as illustrated at d, Fig. 2, the tree is liable to injury by splitting down when loaded with fruit. Especially is this true of the peach tree. Trees in the condition shown in Fig. 2 should have some or all of the laterals cut off, as shown by the dotted lines at d, and a new head formed on the leader, as shown by dotted lines at e. The preparation given to the tree at time of planting is but a small part of that required to complete a shapely and well-proportioned head. During the summer the trees should be examined every two or three weeks and all buds starting into growth where not needed rubbed off, and any shoots tending to outgrow the others should have the end bud pinched out. With proper preparation at planting and a little care during the summer, at the end of the second or third year every tree should be perfectly formed, and this without the use of any instrument except the thumb and fore-finger nail. A well-started head is shown in Fig. 1, an improperly formed one in Fig. 2.—Farm

Have Everything Bright.

Many farmers, when their fences have gone down, buildings need repairing, and everything on the place looks like a wreck, become disgusted and offer their farms for sale. Of course, such a place is not attractive, and, if it finds a buyer, will be sold at a discount. A few dollars expended, for paint, whitewash, lumber and nails, would add hundreds to its value, and, many times, after such a place is fixed up, courage returns to the would-be seller, and he finds his farm a pleasant enough place for him to stay.

In the British Museum.

Leaving the cases containing special letters of great men for those in which are preserved miscellaneous manuscripts, the visitor is simply dazzled by the extent and value of the collection. The department contains more than 9000 volumes of manuscripts written in oriental languages, and each one is either of rare work in itself or a representative of a particular type. There are more than a hundred ancient Greek, Coptic and Latin papyri, and 40,000 other volumes of various kinds. While most of these are interesting only to the scholar, many of the oriental exhibits have a peculiar interest for the merely curious visitor. One Pali manuscript is engraved in beautiful characters on twenty-five leaves of silver. Another is written on lacquered palm leaves, with inlaid letters of mother-of-pearl. Another is on a sheet of gold, and others on ivory. The favorite material for this class of manuscripts is palm leaves, and some of the volumes consist of several hundred such leaves bound in covers of ivory.—Lippincott's.

Good Fell.

The dry goods merchant was explaining the situation to the new drummer he had just employed. "Your ped-cessor," he said, "has got his business all tangled up, and if you take his place you will have a difficult task getting it out of chaos." "I don't know who chaos is," cheerfully replied the drummer, "but I bet I'll sell him a bill of goods if I have to hang on to him a week!"—Dry Goods Chronicle.

Arnold and His Circus.

Matthew Arnold used to travel accompanied by his wife, two daughters and the agent, whom he of gentry called his "improviser." They usually had railway passes given to them, and on several occasions when presenting these to the conductor, he remarked,

KUPP WAS A COOL ONE

HE WALKED OUT OF LIBBY PRISON WITHOUT A QUIVER,

Passed Himself Off as a Rebel in Butter-nuts Anxious to Get a Look at the Yankees—A Pennsylvania Dutchman's Clever Escape.

Lieut. Kupp of the Eighty-eighth Pennsylvania Volunteers was captured, with many of his regiment, at Gettysburg. He was known as a Pennsylvania Dutchman and he came from Berks county, in that state, where German colonists settled nearly two centuries ago and where their descendants cling to the old customs and the mother tongue even unto this day.

As it was summer at the time of Gettysburg, the men captured in that battle were in light attire, and the long march down to Richmond, and the wear and tear on their thin blouses reduced them to rags, and this Pennsylvania lieutenant seemed to be the most ragged of all.

Kupp was considerably over six feet in height, lank, long limbed and inclined to be round shouldered. He was about 24 years old, and the grey eyes, dark hair and fuzz-covered face gave him the appearance of a North Carolina mountaineer. His comrades jokingly called him "the tar heel," but he took it good naturedly. The resemblance was much in his favor when he made up his mind to leave Libby, and, to use his own language, "make a bee line for God's land," as the prisoners called the north.

Just before Christmas the Confederate authorities, who had refused to receive supplies for the prisoners from the United States Government, permitted friends in the North to send down a little food and clothing under flag of truce. Uniforms were contraband, so that all the clothes that came through were of the citizen style and material.

Lieut. Kupp received a huge box, full of hams, sausages, preserves, cheese and other good things from the old farm, but neither the memory of past hunger nor fear of the future prevented his inviting the men who had no boxes to help themselves. Of all the things in the big box, the one that most delighted Kupp's soul was a suit of butternut clothes, evidently of home

Scrofula is a word you don't quite understand, but if you talk with your doctor, he will tell you that it is generally believed to be due to the same cause which gives rise to Consumption. from the prison, but not daring to raise their voices in warning.

At length, to the great relief of all, the lieutenant rose, stretched himself, and yawned. Raising his slouched hat he shouted: "Good-bye Yanks; hope ter see yo agin." Then, with a long, slouching stride, he passed out of sight to the east.

The next flag of truce boat brought through a letter from Kupp. Five days after leaving Libby he fell in with Butler's troopers from Fort Monroe, and at the time of writing was about to take passage for God's land. —New York Sun.

the "upper Potomac room," a hunk of bread in one hand and a chunk of ham in the other, while his laughing companions demanded to know when he left "North Caliny."

"Hit don't mattah we'en I left," responded Kupp, with an inimitable mountaineer drawl; "the thing that's a botherin' me is we'en an' how Ize gwine ter git back."

As old soldiers will remember, the uniforms of the Confederates were anything but uniform at about this time. The citizen clothing put aside at the beginning of the war was sent to the front from home, though a gray hat, gray trousers, or a gray coat had been retained whenever possible. Hundreds of Confederates in "butternuts" passed the prison along Carey street every day, and many of the guards about Libby, and those who came in every morning to count the prisoners were dressed in the same material.

One morning, it was early in January '64, and about ten days after he had received the clothing from home, it was noticed that Kupp, who was usually among the first counted out, hung to the rear, and on this occasion was the very last.

When Kupp came into the upper Chickamauga room, the guard was forming to go. Seizing the hand of Capt. Maas of his own regiment, who stood near by, the lieutenant whispered:

"Good-by, Ed! I'm going to make a break for God's land."

As this was the first intimation Capt. Maas had had of his friend's purpose, he was too much astonished to make a reply. The next instant Kupp had caught step and fallen in behind the guard.

He kept safely to the rear until the sergeant of the guard had reported to the officer in charge. When the guard had passed the sentinel at the door, Kupp walked over and saluted Turner, who by this time was seated at his desk inside of a railing. Hearing the shuffling of feet on the floor, Turner looked up and demanded:

"Who the devil are you?"

"I'm from North Caliny," responded Kupp.

"How did you get in here?"

"Follered the gad, an' I've been a-waitin' to talk wid yo'. Ain't yo' Mistah Turnah?"

"That's my name. Now, what do you want?" asked Turner, as he arose angrily from his desk.

"I've been in hospital, jest got out y'es'day, an' thought foah I left fo' the front I'd like to see the Yankee prizners," said Kupp.

"Go to the front, confound you, and you'll see more Yankees than you'll like!" shouted Turner.

"Then thar ain't no show fo' me to see any of them Yanks I helped gobble at Gettysburg or Chickamauga?"

"No; get out!" and Turner pointed to the door, where an armed guard stood listening and laughing.

"Waal, I didn't know you uns was so cussed particular," drawled Kupp, as obeying the direction indicated by Turner's extended hand, he made for the door.

Kupp saluted the guard, who exchanged winks with him as he passed out to freedom.

Once beyond the guard, a man of ordinary nerve would have started off with all speed, nor halted until Libby was far behind and even the steeples of Richmond out of sight; but Kupp was not an ordinary man. Standing before the entrance to the prison, the lieutenant shouted in to Turner:

"Say, mistah, hev ye any objection to a feller's standin' across the street an' kinder peekin' up at the bulidin'?"

Of course, Turner made no response, but the guard continued down his post and laughed, as if he thought the tall man in butternuts a very funny fellow.

Meantime the news of Kupp's escape had spread among his late associates. The excitement was all the greater from the fact that it had to be suppressed. Instead of glass there were iron bars in the front windows. Prisoners were not permitted to come within two feet of these bars. Of course all knew the order, and that Capt. Forsyth of the 100th Ohio had been killed a few days before for unintentionally violating it, yet the men forgot all about this in their anxiety to see Kupp leave.

The lieutenant had evidently made up his mind to gratify his comrades behind the bars. Across Carey street from the prison there was a vacant lot. Kupp walked to the edge of the lot, sat down on a log, and, taking out his broken jackknife, began to whittle and to signal the men in his old room to come out and join him.

The situation was intensely humorous, but at the same time intensely painful to the men watching Kupp

Women in Gutter Journalism.

She has a police court assignment. The police court is brutal and she winces some under what she hears there; but she must not wince. She places it all out to herself, and she places herself in the background, because she belongs to journalism now, and every virtue and every emotion must be subverted to that one of filling her assignment and procuring the news for her editor. She must not be thin-skinned if she wishes to succeed in her chosen vocation, especially as the editor thinks she is qualified. So few women are qualified, she tells herself, and so few women have the opportunity. She must not forget to be grateful; she learned appreciation at home. So she steels herself, and mantles her womanhood with the mud-stained garment of modern gutter journalism.

Then she must do the slums; she cannot consider herself educated for a career until she has seen the filth of slum life, and investigated the opium den, Chinese vice, the brothel and every other mysterious place in a great city that always stands ready to gratify morbid curiosity. But here is a professional curiosity. She must know about everything, or she can never expect to be a successful journalist. One day she adorns herself as a Salvation Army soldier and marches with the Salvation Army through sections of the city in which they are expecting rocks to be cast at them. Then she writes about it, and has pictures made illustrating the sensation, and then she signs her name to her effort.—The Arena.

THE PUZZLED PHRENOLOGIST.

The great phrenologist was dazed, and lost his usual staidity. He'd found a man who couldn't be praised because of his depravity.

"You are a thief," said he; "I fear you steal when not prevented."

"But William Shakespeare, he stole deer," said he; "I'm complimented."

"Your temper's bad, you're full of bile, you rave and fume intensely."

"Oh, yes," said he, "so did Carlyle; you honor me immensely."

"But you, sir, you are very vain, and weekly egotistic."

"Oh, yes," said he, "just like Montaigne; you're very eulogistic."

"You are a cynic," "So was Swift," "A scold," "So was Shelley," "For lying you've a mighty gift," "Well, so had Machiavelli," "But you're conceited, proud and haughty; a base of pride you're built on," "Well, so was Michael Angelo," "And Dante, and John Milton."

"Funds left with you would be misused, or I am much mistaken; Men's trust in you would be abused," "Why, how like Francis Bacon! Well, here's your fee; you've done me proud; You've ransacked history's pages To rank me with th' illustrious crowd Of great men of all ages."

—SAM W. FOSS.

TWO MEN FROM BURLINGTON.

They Were Both Charles C. Clark, and Various Complications Resulted.

"Got any mail for Charles C. Clark?" asked one of the guests at the Lindell Hotel of Clerk Lewis last night.

"Well, I did have, but gave it to you an hour ago," was the reply.

"Gave it to me? Why, how's that?" asked the astonished man. "I haven't received any mail at all to-day."

"Isn't your name Charles C. Clark?"

"Yes, sir."

"From Burlington?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I'm sorry Mr. Clark, but I was under the impression I had several letters for you and delivered them. But I guess I was mistaken."

Mr. Clark went away, half grumbling, half satisfied, and Clerk Lewis turned to The Republic man, and said:

"I'm in a devil of a fix; I'm sure I gave that man's mail away, and—"

Just then another guest came up and threw down half a dozen letters on the counter. "I'm Charles C. Clark of Burlington," he said, "but these letters are not for me. Guess there is some mistake about the address."

He turned away before Mr. Lewis had time to question him, so the missives were put away for the other guest.

Then the first man returned and wanted to know where his laundry was. He had been promised faithfully, he said, to have it in his room in the morning. It wasn't there and he didn't have a clean piece of linen to his name. The clerk investigated, and was told by the laundress and messenger of the hotel that "Mr. Clark's laundry was sent up to his room and must be there yet, and please tell Mr. Clark to look again."

"Hang them," exclaimed Clark. "don't they think I can see. I searched all over the room, and it's not there."

"Oh, by the way," said Clerk Lewis, "here are your letters, Mr. Clark," and he handed over the opened epistles. "Now, maybe I can explain about your laundry," he continued, after the man had finished swearing about his correspondence being opened. "There's another Charles C. Clark here from Burlington."

"Yes, here he is," interrupted the other Clark, coming up to the desk. "and here's a bill for laundry that I don't owe," and he threw down a yellow slip before Clark No. 1 and the puzzled clerk.

Explanations followed. One man was Charles C. Clark of Burlington, Ia., who had been stopping at the hotel for the last week, and the other was Charles C. Clark of Burlington, Kan., who arrived only yesterday. They exchanged pleasantries over the matter and adjourned to the bar. Mr. Lewis followed them and insisted on paying for the drinks.

Trapped the Officer.

A little time ago a tradesman who carried on business in a large provincial town happened to see a man whom he knew to be an Inland Revenue officer prying into his shop window. After satisfying his curiosity, the officer

A woman's best jewels are her babies. A healthy, happy child is womanhood's most appropriate ornament. A childless woman is to be pitied, even though she be the possessor of other jewels that are priceless. A womanly woman knows this and would sacrifice all the diamonds of all the nations for the clinging, consoling touch of baby hands. Thousands of women lead childless, loveless lives because of ill-health. They do not understand the duties that they owe to themselves. They neglect the most delicate and important parts of woman's organism. They suffer untold agonies from weakness and disease of the organs that make motherhood possible, and never know the thrilling touch of baby fingers. They imagine their cases hopeless.

In this they are mistaken. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sure, safe, swift cure for all weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine. It acts directly and only on these organs. It prepares a woman for motherhood. It always all discomfort during the expectant period. It insures the baby's health and makes its coming easy and almost painless. More than 90,000 women have testified in writing to its value. All good druggists sell it.

Mrs. Rebecca Gardner, of Grafton, York Co., Va., writes: "I was so sick with dyspepsia that I could not eat anything for over four months. I had to starve myself, as nothing would stay on my stomach. I tried almost everything that people would tell me about, and nothing did me any good. I weighed only 80 pounds. I took two bottles of the Golden Medical Discovery and thank God, and your medicine, I am as well as I ever was, and now weigh 125 pounds. I have a bottle of your Favorite Prescription now, and that is a wonderful medicine for female weakness. Praise God that he created such a man as you."

Business is business. No time for head aches. Constipation causes them. Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure them by curing the cause. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic.

INDUSTRIAL WOMEN.

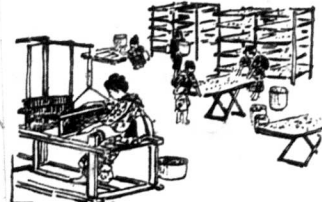

THE JAPANESE FIELD WIDENS FOR THEM AS PRODUCERS.

Probably One Half of the Manufactured Products of the Flowery Kingdom Come From the Hands of Women—More and More in Demand Each Year

(Special Correspondence.)

Tokyo, Japan, (Special).—It is impossible to fully estimate the share which the women of Japan have in the industrial pursuits of the country, but there is no doubt that an enormous amount of the products, probably more than half, comes from their hands. Throughout the whole country the greater part of which is engaged in the many varied industries which characterize Japan, there are few manufactures; these are only in one or two of the large cities, and are of recent date. Most of the industrial production is therefore carried on in humble homes, where a master workman, assisted by the apprentices and his family, carries on the work, the home and the workshop having been the same for many generations. The father trained his sons in the industry to which he had been born and reared, and when he died he left them to carry on the work and make their living by it.

Although the industries of Japan are by no means fully developed. They have been carried on for nearly 2000

years. The skilled handiwork and artistic taste of the Japanese workmen are already famed over all the world, and the exquisite cloisonne, the rich lacquer, and the beautiful silks show what is made in these low thatched huts scattered over the empire of Japan, and they fully prove that the introduction of machinery will never harm the rearing of the delicate worms and later in the season in the spinning and weaving of the silk. The work is mostly done with coarse, rough machines, and yet delicate fabrics and artistic patterns are sent from such homes to the cities. The average earnings of women engaged in the work are from 20 to 50 cents a day. This in Japan is good wages.

In connection with the silk culture it is interesting to note that the raising of silk worms is a favorite occupation in many wealthier families, where the ladies spend much time in tending the worms as an amusement.

Women in the interior are often seen doing the hard work of the men, there being little difference made between them. In some places they do the work of the ordinary laborer, such as pulling or pushing carts, carrying heavy burdens, cutting timber and mending roads. In the mining districts women are found among the hard-working miners. The women of the interior serve as carriers over the hard mountain roads, and nearly every pack horse in the mountainous districts has a little woman for its leader, who goes with it miles and miles over the rough passes and narrow paths, stopping only now and then at resting places for a cup of tea and luncheon or to change the straw shoes of both horse and leader—for horses as well as men wear shoes of woven straw. One often wonders at these women, where they come from and where they go, pitying them for the beggarly pittance which they get in return for the use of a horse and its owner for the whole day.

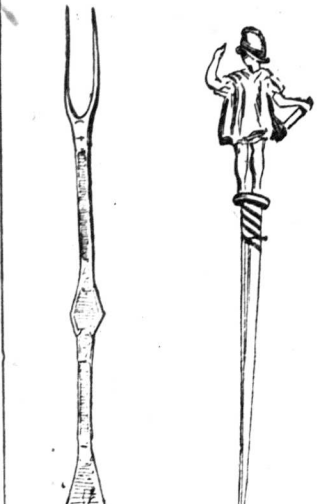

In the fishing districts much is done by the fishermen's wives. The preparation of the seaweed, which is used for food in great quantities, the making of salt and the drying and preparation of the fish is mostly done by them, as well as the making and mending of fishing nets. Extraordinary stories are told of places along the coast, where there are famous women divers, whose skill is beyond that of many of the men. These women, called ama, go out among dangerous rocks and rough waves and battle with the ocean, diving down into deep places to obtain a certain kind of seaweed which is considered to be a great delicacy. They work hard to obtain this precious seaweed, often enduring great danger, and receiving many bruises and cuts. In this way they obtain exceedingly high wages, sometimes as much as $4 or $5 a day when the time is favorable.

On the whole the lives of the women of the laboring classes compare favorably with those in other countries, and as regards their position in the home, and their relation to their husbands, they are better off than are their apparently more fortunate sisters in the higher ranks of life. As to the large amount of work done by them, its usefulness and its great results, there can be no doubt to anyone who has studied the question or who has traveled about in the various districts of Japan.

The Handy Fork Comparatively of Modern Origin.

Nine hundred years ago the fork made its appearance as an aid to the eating of food. Before that time our ancestors and all the fine folks, kings, queens, and everybody else of whatever degree, ate their meat with their fingers and tore their food apart very much after the fashion of savages. The appearance of the fork in the eleventh century is accounted such an advance

He Got Better.
 It was a sad scene. The old man lay on the bed, and by him sat the faithful wife, holding his worn hand in hers and forcing back the tears to greet his wondering look with a smile. She spoke words of comfort and of hope,
 but he felt the cold hand falling on him, and he turned his weary eyes up to her pale, worn face.
 "Jeannie, dear wife, I am going."
 "Oh, no, John, not yet, not yet."
 "Yes, dear wife," and he closed his eyes. "The end is near. The world—the world grows dark around me, gathering thicker and thicker, and I seem to hear sweet music."
 "No, no, dear John; that's the brass band in the street."
 "What?" said the dying man. "Have those scoundrels dared to come round here when they know I am dying? Give me my bootjack; I'll soon let 'em
 see!" and in a towering rage the old man jumped from his bed, and before his wife could think he had opened the window and had shied the bootjack
 at the band. "I've hit that Dutch leader, anyway," said he, and went back to bed and got better.

Many Lives Shortened by the Pleasures of the Table.
 In spite of the warnings and commands of family physicians, in spite of the many examples of shortened lives and lives of suffering, men will yield to the seductiveness of the pleasures of the table. The spectacle of the man who overeats, or who deliberately eats improper food, is common enough, but rarely do we see as plain evidence of the admiration for the glutton which certain people possess as that which the daily papers lately afforded. A well-known boniface died at an age when he ought to have been enjoying robust and vigorous health. Some slight mention was made of his business ventures, of his daily life, of his reason for living. But all this part of his existence was immaterial and uninteresting. The great and praiseworthy features of his life seem to have been gastronomic feats and a general ability to eat and drink enormously. He was lauded as the prince of bon vivants,
 the man who could eat a huge dinner
 and shortly thereafter swallow a brace of broiled lobsters and a couple of Welsh rarebits, washed down with corpuscular libations of vintage or distillation or fermentages. During his last illness, when his physicians enjoined rest in bed and a scrupulously careful diet, we read that he was game enough to dress and go out on the hotel porch to sit, winding up his imprudence (and incidentally his life) with a hearty meal, in defiance of the medical directions. This last piece of bravado was apparently considered by certain newspaper reporters as an achievement fit
 to rank with a victory on a battlefield,
 and the glutton was admiringly mentioned as though he were a brilliant and fearless hero, risking his life in a worthy cause. He was allowed more space than the Cuban patriots. He was ceased only by the Chinese victory
 in importance by a timely topic.
 The newspapers were not creating a sentiment, but merely catering to one already formed in thus aiding gluttony. The only conclusion we can draw is that the epicurean philosophy still has its cult, and that many a man's motto is "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." The case is left to the moralist.—American Medical-Surgic J.
 Bulletin.

In these workshops women assist to a more or less degree in almost every branch of industry and some of the productions are entirely from the hands of women. Silk, one of the chief exports, is the result of women's work, and silk culture, as well as spinning and weaving, is done in the home.
 In passing through the silk districts one will find every home occupied with the culture of the silk worm, and each room filled with long trays containing the young worm or the cocoons, or else
 with weaving or spinning implements,
 and women busy at work in every process of the industry. Tea, one of the greatest exports, is often picked and dried by women, while on the farms or in the rice field, the farmers' wives are seen at all seasons by the side of their husbands sowing the seed, transplanting, weeding, and sharing in the hard work as well as in the lighter toil
 which gives them their scanty living.
 The women wear dark blue-cotton dresses which resemble the dresses of the men so much that it is sometimes difficult to distinguish the sex at the first glance. Over their head is placed a cotton towel folded gracefully to protect them from the sun and wind.
 Sometimes a baby is tied to a woman's back, while the mother goes about to do her work.

Passing through the many villages in agricultural Japan, one finds many small, cheerless and apparently com-fortless homes. Yet the small pittance earned, often by husband and wife working side by side, is enough to keep body and soul together, and even to afford such pleasures as to make them light-hearted and happy. The Japanese as a nation are contented and happy, and though the lower classes are often improvident they manage in spite of their hardships to get along contentedly. Many of the artisans, low tradesmen and coolies, hard-worked as they are, easily throw aside their work and take a day of rest and pleasure, without a thought or a care what the future may bring, and lightly spend the hardly earned pittance for some amusement—an excursion under the flowering trees or a day at the theatre.

PICKING TEA.

Bare and meagre as are many of the homes, they are generally neat and clean and show the pains which the wife has taken. There are often a few feet of ground for a miniature garden, with its trees and pots of flowers, and some refinement and gentleness is found in their lives. There are presents exchanged, greetings and formal salutations passed between these humble homes, where poverty does not seem to have hardened the heart or taken away gentle ways.
 Thus, in spite of hard taxes, low payments and heavy toll, the farmers of Japan are a contented and hard-working class.
 The fact that the women share to a greater or less degree in the work of

It is true that the word fork occurs once in the Bible. This is in the Pentateuch, where mention is made of the "flesh forks." But antiquarians are agreed that these are not forks in the modern sense of the word.

Antiquarians have an intimate knowledge of the ways in which the Greeks and Romans lived. They know that they reclined on lounges when they ate, resting their heads on one hand and eating with the other. They know that they were accustomed to get very drunk at their big feasts, and they know the delicacies which they ate.
 But no mention is made of their eating with forks. The food was brought to the diners by servants, and was already prepared, being sliced ready for eating. Lucullus, or any other epicure who was dining, would then use the same forks as were used by Adam —namely, the fingers. Mention of the fork appears in Virgil, Livy and other writers of the day, but the Latin word
 furca meant anything with two prongs,
 and the nearest approach to the fork was the same utensil as that used by the ancient Jews in removing their cooked morsels from the pot.

The explorations of Herculaneum and Pompeii, which towns were destroyed in the first century, added much to the information of moderns as to the customs of the ancients. Only two instruments resembling table forks were found in Herculaneum. None were found at Pompeii.

It was in Venice in the year 997 that forks are said to have first made their appearance as aids to the eating of food. The merit of their adoption belongs to the Doge Orsola, who at the wedding of his son produced a silver fork and a gold spoon. It excited great comment at the time and added much to the already great reputation of the doge as a gourmand of great extravagance.

Three hundred years later the fork
 reached France, like other gastronomic ideas of the Italians. Then Orsola's innovation reached England, and in course of time they were more used,
 but for a long time all users of forks were ridiculed in England as practicing an effeminate piece of daintiness. A clergyman spoke against the use of forks "as being an insult to Providence not to touch one's meat with one's fingers."

The Value of Salt.
 Common salt ground to a fine powder
 will remove the stain of hard-boiled eggs from silver spoons quicker than anything else. Coarse salt, however, will scratch them. A little salt will remove the stain of tea from cups or
 of vinegar from table linen.
 Salt and water will clean willow or rattan furniture and will keep matting from turning yellow, as it will if wiped off with clear water. After sweeping a carpet which is somewhat faded,
 scatter coarse, damp table salt over it,
 and brush it vigorously. A fresh supply of dust may be extracted from the carpet in this way and the faded colors will be perceptibly brightened. A handful of salt added to a tubful of water, in which colored cambric and other cottons are soaked before they are washed, will prevent the colors running and dry them as rapidly as possible.
 Do not use too much salt, however, as it hardens the water and prevents the dirt coming out as well as the color.—

Frocks for Small Girls.
 "It is no longer considered necessary," writes Emma M. Hooper, in The Ladies' Home Journal, "to set aside certain fabrics for little girls' wear,
 as nowadays they wear everything that their mothers do, except real lace and jewels. Care is taken, however,
 to use only small-patterned materials for their frocks. In colors, white is always in good taste, also baby blue and pink, and this spring green is very much in vogue, as well as golden brown, red, French and navy blue, pearl gray and pale yellow. Black is used only as a trimming in velvet ribbon or mohair braid. Satin and taffeta ribbons are used as trimmings, also white, yellowish and linen-colored embroideries. Valenciennes and net top laces are used in white and butter shades with insertion to match."

Stains on Wall Paper.
 Fresh stains upon wall paper where people have rested their heads can be removed by covering the spot with a mixture of pipe clay and water made into a soft paste and letting it remain over night. Then brush it off with a stiff whisk broom.

A Pretty Wedding.

At 11 o'clock, Wednesday, April 21st, one of the most brilliant events of the season took place at Mt. Carmel church, Prince Edward County, when Mr. J. J. Fralick, formerly of Napanee, led to the altar, his only daughter, Edith Blanche, to be united in wedlock by the Rev. Mr. Sing to J. Solmes Watts, D. D. S., a graduate of the University of Baltimore. The bride was charmingly dressed in a suit of cream satin and veil while she wore in her hair a bouquet of the Lilly of the Valley. Miss Etta Watts, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid and was attired in a robe of pale delicate green, richly trimmed with white, while the groom was assisted by Mr. O. Price Fralick, brother of the bride. A large number of relatives and friends were present at the ceremony among whom was Mr. S. M. Brown, photographer, of West Lake, who photographed the bridal party before leaving the altar. After the ceremony was performed, the guests and bridal party sat down to a sumptuous repast. Among the afternoon proceedings was the photographing of the guests and residence. The high esteem in which the bride is held was shown by the large number of costly presents. The guests departed after extending congratulations and spending a pleasant afternoon with music, instrumental and vocal. The newly-wedded couple will take up their residence in New York.—Com.

Anniversary Services.

The Oddfellows of Napanee celebrated the 78th anniversary of the founding of the order in America by attending Divine Service in the Western Methodist Church on Sunday morning last. Napanee Lodge, No. 86, and Argyle Lodge, No. 212, reinforced by brethren from Deseronto met at the Lodge rooms of No. 86 at 10 o'clock a.m. and marched to the church in a body, about 150 strong. The members presented a fine appearance in their handsome regalia and a fair sprinkling of silk ties but heightened the effect. The services were conducted by the Rev. D. O. Crossley, who preached a really able, instructive and eloquent sermon, choosing as the subject "The Three Links," Friendship, Love and Truth. The pulpit was tastefully decorated with flowers and presented a beautiful appearance. The music by the choir was of a high order and was greatly appreciated. The male choruses from oratorios, during the offertory, were particularly fine. On the return to the Lodge room votes of thanks were tendered to the Rev. D. O. Crossley, for the excellent music rendered and the church committee for the courtesy.

The Progress of the War.

Yesterday's dispatches from the seat of war in southern Europe are not reassuring. The sudden outburst of popular indignation which threatened on Tuesday to overwhelm King George, of Greece, and exile the reigning house has to some extent calmed down, though the Ministerial crisis is by no means averted, and the Opposition in the Legislative Assembly, headed by ex-Minister Ralli, is making a strong bid for power. Should the government be overthrown the opinion prevails that the throne itself will be seriously jeopardized. The situation will not be improved by the last despatches to hand before going to press, which reports a terrific battle at Epirus, in which the Greeks at first had a decided advantage, but were finally outnumbered and suffered severe defeat. An important announcement is that from Paris to the effect that England, France, Russia and Italy are in active negotiations looking towards attempted mediation, and that German and Austria are in accord with the movement. Several of the powers in the meantime are taking steps to protect their people who are resident in Athens and other points of danger.

Wanted to go to Watertown.

On Saturday evening last a young girl who gave the name of Jessie Woodcock, of Woodstock, made her appearance at the Anglo-American hotel, and asked to be allowed to remain over Sunday. She was questioned by the proprietor, Mr. Reid, to whom she said that her home is at, or near Napanee. Her mother is dead and her father has married a second wife, who, according to the girl's story has not treated her kindly, and she ran away some days ago. She desired to make her way to Watertown, N. Y., but had not a cent of money to pay her fare. She was under the impression that she could persuade the Captain of the Cape Vincent, Kingston steamer to carry her across free. She was anxious, she said, to find work, and with that object in view was very desirous of reaching Watertown without any delay. The proprietor of the Anglo American took the girl to the police station, where she told her story and where she spent the night. Yesterday morning she was sent to the infant's home, pending the making of enquiries.—Kingston Whig.

He was one of the sturdy stock of pioneers who have left their impress upon Canadian life and to whom we of the younger generation owe a deep debt of gratitude. On reaching the age of maturity Gabriel Balfour settled in the village of Bath and embarked in the carriage business with Thomas and Henry Armstrong. The firm of Armstrong and Balfour won a wide reputation for the high character of the work turned out by them and many of their rigs are to be seen in the good old county of Lennox and Addington. Of a genial and kindly temperament Gabriel Balfour had a host of friends and he was respected and esteemed by all for his sterling honesty, industry and probity of character. During the forty years he was engaged in business at Bath he won the respect of all for his straight-forward dealing. The firm of Armstrong & Balfour carried on in addition to their carriage works a general store and were looked upon as the foremost business men of the place. About 10 years ago Mr. Balfour retired from the firm and lived quietly at his residence in Bath till the messenger of death called him to his reward on Saturday last. Mr. Balfour's death came in the nature of a surprise as on Saturday morning he appeared to be in his usual health. Gabriel Balfour was born near Belfast, Ireland, on June 12th, 1812. He was twice married, his first wife being Ann Armstrong, sister of the late Thomas and Henry Armstrong, and by her had five children, John Balfour, of the Finance Department, Ottawa, Thos. and William deceased, and Elizabeth, wife of Mr. C. V. Priest, of Ewart, Oscola City, Michigan, and Harriett, wife of Mr. J. H. Madden, of Napanee, who preceded her father to the grave in April, 1893. His second wife, Ellen Richards, sister of Mrs. Robt. Boyes, Napanee, survives him. Deceased was in his 85th year and led a blameless and useful life. He was a consistent member of the Methodist church and a staunch reformer. The funeral on Tuesday was conducted by the Revs. Tucker and Shorey and was one of the largest ever held at Bath, testifying to the esteem and respect in which the deceased was held by all.

A Lamentable Death.

Herbert C. Parks, only son of Irvine Parks, Esquire, treasurer of the county of Lennox and Addington, died at Acton, California, on the 27th day of April, 1897. Mr. Parks was born in the township of North Fredericksburgh, and was at the time of his decease about thirty-six years of age. He studied law in the office of Messrs. Deroche & Madden, at Napanee. He married a daughter of W. S. Williams, now of California, but who practiced law in Napanee for many years, and occupied a prominent position as a leading man in this province. Mr. Parks' health being poor he left Canada for California in the expectation that his health would be improved. After becoming a resident of the State of California he was admitted to the bar of that state and practiced law there for several years. Mr. Parks was a young man of great ability, and a genial character and was respected and esteemed by all who knew him. He was of a peculiarly kind and gentle disposition and made friends wherever he went. He was a strong Liberal and while in Canada took an active part in support of the Liberal party. His influence was strongly felt at any election and especially in the township of North Fredericksburgh where he was known and highly esteemed. Notwithstanding the fact that he left this country and became a resident of California he yet retained all his old affection and enthusiasm for the Liberal party in Canada and remained a Canadian in heart and soul, and when the great Liberal victory was won on the 23rd of June last and the Hon. Wilfred Laurier became Premier of the Dominion he wrote a letter to his father rejoicing in the victory won by the Liberal party and stating that notwithstanding his surroundings in the great Republic he still remained a true loyal British subject. The deceased lost a child only a very short time before his own death. He leaves a widow and one child surviving him. His death is very keenly felt by all his friends here. He lived a consistent life and died, we believe, a christian death.

PARISH OF BATH—Owing to failure of health, only temporary, it is hoped, Rural Dean Baker is required by his physician to take a few weeks rest. He goes west for this purpose this week. During his absence his clerical duties will be discharged by kind returned brethren and other friends. Mr. F. G. Kirkpatrick, L. R., Kingston, conducts the services in St. John's next Sunday, May 2nd, which will be at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. Due notice will be given of the services for the following Sunday by Mr. Kirkpatrick.

The News was favored with a call on Monday from Mr. F. Burrows, of Napanee, Inspector of Public Schools for the counties of Lennox and Addington, who was on his way to Flinton to look over his various mining properties. Mr. Burrows owns several good mining properties in the townships of Kaladar and Anglesa and has an interest in the well-known Guina mine. Captain Holmes, of Napanee, late immigration agent under the Conservative regime, and Mr. Rudd Perry, civil engineer of the same town, are also in Kaladar and Anglesa townships on a prospecting tour.—Tweed News.

Thomas O'Brien, a tramp, hailing from Napanee as his last previous stopping place, was before police magistrate Duff this morning on a charge of vagrancy. He was remanded for a week, in order that he will not be able to commit any depredations during the period Lord and Lady Aberdeen will be in the city. A fellow traveller, who came to the city in company with O'Brien, preferred a charge against him, of having committed a foul and unnatural crime, while the pair were in Napanee jail for shelter, but as the police authorities thought the charge should have been brought in Napanee, it will not be taken up here.—Kingston Whig.

The Tweed News says: Flinton, has a mineral sensation in the shape of a discovery of a large vein of rich mispickel ore on Lot 25 in the 5th Con. of Kaladar. Mr. Ribstock, of Buffalo, who is understood to represent American capitalists, has secured this lot and has been doing development work for some weeks. The vein has been traced across the lot and into the adjoining one on the north owned by Inspector Burrows, of Napanee. The ore around Flinton has always been regarded as free milling so that this new discovery is a great surprise, and shows that the mineral deposits here are exactly similar to those in Mar-mora.
